

Using pictures to answer questions

LI: to retrieve observable information from images and text.

Where are they? We don't know

What are they doing? Looking for sea shell

What is the weather? We don't know

Why are they bending down? I don't know

Where are they? At a soccer field

What are they doing? Getting the ball

What are the two teams' colours? Green and yellow

How are they feeling? Don't know

Where are they? outside.

What is the boy doing? Stepping on the ladders.

How many kids are there? There are three kids.

What is the girl doing on the swing? The girl is sitting on the swing.

What did the old woman do for a living? Completing small errands for farmers.

What would she get when she completed the jobs? A plate of meat and a cup of tea.

What did she find on the ground? A pot

What did it have in it? Gold pieces

Where did she find the pot? On the side of the road

There once was an old woman, who earned a poor living by completing small errands for farmers. She didn't earn much: perhaps a plate of meat at one house and a cup of tea at another. Nevertheless, the old woman always looked as cheerful as if she didn't have a want in the world.

Late one summer evening, as she was trotting away homewards, the old woman came upon a big black pot lying by the side of the road. "Now that," she said stopping to look at it, "would be the very thing for me if I had anything to put into it. But who could have left it here?" She glanced around, expecting that the person it belonged to was not far away. But as far as the eye could see, there was no one around.

She bent her stiff old back and lifted the lid to look inside.

"Oh wow!" she cried, jumping back to the other side of the road. "It is filled to the brim with gold pieces!"